Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 20, 1819.

It was stated some time ago in a southern paper, that a dispute had arisen between Generals Jackson and Scott, and it was openly asserted, that the former intended visiting New-York, for the purpose of calling General Scott to the field. The whole correspondence has lately been published under the sanction of, or probably by General Scott himself. This disagreeable affair, disagreeable undoubtedly to the parties, and certainly unfortunate for the character of our country, as the conduct of one of the parties on the occasion has evinced a degree of rudeness and violence most unbecoming a gentleman in his distinguished situation, originated thus.

In the commencement of the Seminole campaign, an order was issued from the department of war directly to one of the officers belonging to the district of Gen. Jackson, and then under his command. General Jackson conceived the Secretary at War to be wrong in issuing any order to any part of his division, without making him the medium of communication: under this impression, he published a general order, authorizing every member of his district todisobey every command, not emanating from his head-quarters; this order was published in all the Atlantic papers, and from the boldness of its tone and novelty of its manner, it became a general topic of conversation throughout the union. Among others, it seems, that at a dinner party in New-York, at which Governor Clinton and Gen. Scott found themselves placed side by side, it became a matter of discussion between them. Clinton asked Scott his opinion of the order; Scott replied, that he conceived it to be "an act of mutiny."—Some weeks after this, Gen. Jackson received an anonymous letter, from some good friend, which stated this conversation of Scott's, and contained a good deal of insidious insinuation calculated to excite the passion of the old hero. Jackson immediately wrote to Scott demanding to know if the information was true; Scott replied, and avowed the fact, but took some pains to state the affair in such a manner that Gen. Jackson might be convinced that his opinion only went to the general order, abstractedly from involving any reflection personally on Gen. Jackson; and claimed his right, in common with other citizens, to express his sentiments of an act, which from its great publicity, seemed to invite investigation Gen. Jackson did not challenge Scott as was stated, but his rejoinder to Scott's letter, is couched in a style of such unrestrained invective, and evident misapprehension, that we most sincerely regret any part of the correspondence has ever been given to the public. However much our old favourite Jackson may have felt hurt on the occasion, there is certainly nothing contained in the letter of Scott that would at all justify many of the expressions in his last letter; such as this for instance—"I might insult an honourable man, by "questions such as these, but shall not "expect they will harrow up one, in a "a man who must be dead to all those "feelings which are the true characteristics of a gentleman." And again—"To the intermedling pimps and spies "of the war department, who are in the "garb of gentlemen, I hold myself responsible for any grievance they may "labour under on my account; and with "which you have my permission to number yourself."

Generals Jackson and Scott have only been known to the public since the commencement of the war; their conduct during this contest has been such as to render their names a subject of pride to every citizen; the wreath of glory with which they have encircled the American name, will bloom with imperishable verdure. It is truly grating then, that such men, who have hitherto only presented themselves to our imagination in the fascinating costume of heroism and honour, should themselves be the first to destroy the charm, and descend to the level of common men; that in place of the language of delicacy and courtesy, they should resort to the terms of vulgar abuse and recrimination.

Governor Clinton's name has been brought in by General Scott, as the presumed author of the infamous anonymous communication that has given rise to this affair. We hope the General is mistaken; we cannot suffer ourselves to believe for a moment that a mind capable of that grandeur of conception that distinguishes Mr. Clinton, could "descend so low" as to forget for a moment the dignity of the man, and the honour of a gentleman.

From the Port Folio of April, 1819.

A patriotic poem, by the princess of Canino, wife of Lucien Bonaparte, is shortly to be issued from the press in France. It was composed during the period of her exile and captivity. She is said to be celebrated for wit and poetic talent.

There was published in France, according to the Bibliographic de la France, during the year 1817, four thousand two hundred and thirty-seven works—eleven hundred and seventy-nine engravings—and four hundred and seventy pieces of music. The three first weeks of the present year have produced two hundred & eighty publications, sixty-three engravings, and twenty-six new tunes.

Copenhagen, Sept. 15, 1818.—The man-milliner* Ehrenholdt, has discovered the means of making paper out of tang; (a kind of sea grass; the Zostera of Linnæus.) For this interesting discovery, he has obtained a patent for three years.

The Elements of Surgery, by Dr. Dorsey, the late distinguished professor of the university of Pennsylvania, has been republished in Edinburgh, as a text-book for the students of that school of medical science. This is the first American book which has received that honour.

The Travels of Lewis and Clarke have reached a third edition in London. We believe a single edition was found to be a heavy article in the store of the American publisher. So little respect do we pay to our own literature.

We ought to have mentioned before this time, that, at the close of the last year, Robert Walsh, Esq. announced, that particular circumstances had induced him to decline any further co-operation in the Analectic Magazine. We should regard this as a public loss, if we were not confident that the industry and the ambition of this elegant scholar will always prevent his talents from lying in abeyance. He has recently been appointen professor of General Literature in the University of this Commonwealth, & we believe that he is employed on a work relating to our domestic history. Edwd. Ingersoll, Esq. has succeeded the late editor in the management of the Analectic; and we are assured, "that such arrangements have been made for the supply of both original matter and selections, as to give every expectation that the Magazine will possess much additional interest and value. Its pages will comprize the spirit of the French as well as British periodical works, and the original notices on American literature, biography, and history, will be furnished by an extended number of able contributors."—Mr. Ingersoll is a gentleman of pure principles and amiable character, and we shall rejoice in seeing him redeem the pledge which he has given.

Professor Moricchini, of Rome, having discovered the magnetising power of the violet rays of the prismatic spectrum, the marquis Ridolfi has succeeded in magnetising two needles; the one in thirty, the other in forty-six minutes; and can now charge, with the magnetic power, by the same process, as many needles as he pleases. The needles thus magnetised (namely, by directing on and passing over them, for a period of not less than thirty minutes, the violet rays of the spectrum, through the medium of a condensing lens) possess all the energy and the properties of needles magnetised in the common way, by means of a loadstone. Their homonomous poles repel, while the heteronomous poles attract, each other; and, made to vibrate on a pivot, their points turn constantly to the north, their heads to the south! This adds to the wonders of magnetism, and must be regarded as a very extraordinary discovery.

* This is correctly translated from the original word, modehandler, and signifies, we presume, a tailor. Anciently in England, a harness maker was called a horse-milliner. Ed. P. F.

From the Baltimore Patriot, April 7.

By a gentleman from St. Thomas, we are favoured with the following state of affairs on the Spanish Maine.

M. C. T. Books.

Margaratta, March 17, 1719.

We learn that affairs are going on very prosperously in that quarter. On the 6th of March, near Casaugna, the army of Morillo was attacked by General Piar, who completely defeated the Royalists with the loss of 600 killed on the field—no prisoners. Loss of the Patriots 64 killed. Morillo and his army so situated that a retreat was impossible; and that General Bolivar was only waiting for a division of 2500 English troops, which were ascending the Orinoco to join him, when the destruction of Morillo and his army would be inevitable, 500 English troops had arrived at Juan Griego (Margaretta) and col. English with 2500 more was daily expected, when the expedition fitting out against Cumana, at Juan Griego, under the command of General Oudinette, will be 6000 strong (3000 and 3000 natives,) assisted by the squadron, consisting of 15 sail well manned and equiped, under the command of Admiral Biron, Generals Oudinette & Valdes, with Colonel Needham and several other officers of distinction, had arrived at Juan Griego, from Augostura, to join the expedition.

Admiral Brion had sailed on the 14th in pursuit of the royal squadron, and on the 16th chased them into Cumana Bay when a dreadful cannonading took place and continued the whole day—the result, of the attack was not known. The Independence of Venezuela will be completed to a certainty the ensuing campaign—the resources of the Patriots in men, money and every thing, are great.

SAVANNAH, March 31.

We have seen a letter from Darien, from a respectable source, to a gentleman in this city, which states, that the Grand Jury for the county of M'Intosh, have found true bills against Gen. Francis Hopkins, and his son, Colonel John L. Hopkins, for the murder of M'Queen M'Intosh, Esq.—The trial of these unfortunate individuals takes place this day.—The circumstances attending this case are very unfavorable to the prisoners, as far as we have been able to learn.—Rep.

Mr. Amos Wood, of Boston, on the 30th of March, 1818, brought from Concord, Mass. to Boston, a female hog, which then weighed 596 pounds; and has kept her ever since in that town. She was weighed again on the 30th of March, 1819, when she weighed 1106 pounds, having gained 510 pounds in 365 days—and is now apparently thriving more rapidly than ever. Her food is carried every day—she has a salt fish and the water in which it is boiled every week. She has never had but one litter of pigs—and one of those now weighs 600. She girts 7½ feet, and is 8 feet long.

Wager of Battle.—The British Parliament have abolished the cruel and absurd law, sanctioning the termination of disputes by individual combat. Whatever might have been its uses in the barbarous ages when it found its way into the British statute books, it was argued that it is now a disgrace to civilization.

Caution to Swearers.—About a fortnight ago two young men, one named Joseph Gowlett, a sailor, and the other a coal porter, in company at a public house, engaged, for a pot of beer, to try which could swear the most diabolical oaths; when Gowlett, after using the most abominable expressions for a short time, became exhausted, and could not utter a syllable, and has remained speechless ever since: a living example to those who take God's name in vain. Lon. pap.

Cure for a Consumption of the lungs.

The medical world has been very agreeably surprised by "an account of some experiments made with vapour of boiling tar in the cure of pulmonary consumption, by Dr. Critchion." This tract must of necessity excite the attention of the public in no common degree. From the failures and disappointments which have heretofore attended the inhalation of different gasses, or modified airs, and particularly from, it should seem, the total failure of the plans adopted by the late Dr. Beddoes at Bristol, the faculty have for some time past been torpid, or slumbering over their hopeless patients in pthisis pulmonalis, content with merely smoothing their descent to that bourne 'whence no traveller returns;' but the facts detailed in this publication, cannot fail to arouse their energies and awaken their attention. Dr. Crichton's first patients were exposed to the vapour of tar in a cable, manufactory, which he one day went to see, without any other motive than that of taking a walk. In that place where the tar was boiled in large quantities, he found to his great surprise, that although the vapour affected the eye painfully, yet he breathed with perfect ease. In a kind of a magazine adjoining to this, where the vapour and odour of boiling tar were weaker, yet strong, the eyes were not effected; and it immediately struck him that this artificial atmosphere might be of use to a consumptive patient, whom he despaired of curing. The proprietor of the cable manufactory immediately consented to trial being made, and many patients were materially benifitted thereby. Experiments were afterwards made by the physicians of the hospital, Messrs. Bluhm & Roos, who say they found "the easiest and best way of making the tar fumigation, (pix liquida) is to put the tar in an earthen vessel over a lamp or heated iron, to cause a slow volatilization, until the air of the ward be sufficiently impregnated with it. This is repeated three or four times a day." The result of their observations is,—"That the tar fumigation produces a very quick and salutary effect on the cough, expectoration, and respiration; that the sleep becomes more tranquil, continued and restorative, and that the patients regain strength." They also remark, "in the beginning of this treatment, the sweats are generally more profuse; but that these sensibly decrease in the course of a few days. Patients, who, before entering the tar vapour, kept their beds constantly, soon regained sufficient strength to rise from them, and walk about the ward the whole day. All who submitted to the fumigation have become convalescent, but it is too early to affirm that any are completely cured." Dr. Crichton observes, "that it is evident, from the preceding cases, that, tar fumigation, though completely successful in some of them, did not produce the same good effect in all; but, on the other hand, the very great relief which every patient experienced at first from it particularly in the diminution of cough, expectoration, and hectic fever, is a fact which ought to encourage us to multiply the trials of this remedy as far as possible.

Mon. Mag. for Feb. 1818.

The rich plains," says Sismondi, in his treatise De la Literature Midi de l'Europe, "the rich plains of Fez & Morocco, illuminated five centuries ago by so many libraries, so many academies, & so many universities, are now nothing but desarts of burning sand, for which tyrants dispute with tigers. All the gay and fertile shore of Mauritania, where commerce, the arts, and agriculture had been raised to the highest prosperity, are now the nests of pirates, who spread terror on the seas, and who relax from their labours in shameful debaucheries, till the plague, which returns yearly, comes to mark out its victims, and to avenge offended humanity. Egypt is nearly swallowed in the sands, which it once fertilized.—Syria and Palestine are desolated by wandering Redouins, less formidable, however, than the Pasha who oppresses them."—We may go farther—"Bagdad, formerly the abode of luxury, of power, and of knowledge, is ruined; the once celebrated universities of Cuta and Basora are shut;—those of Samarcand and of Balch are also destroyed. In this immense extent of country—twice or three times as large as Europe—nothing is found but ignorance, slavery, terror and death. The literary riches of the Arabs exist no more in the countries which the Arabs and musselmen rule. What has been saved of them, is entirely in the hands of their enemies—in the convents of monks, or in the libraries of European Kings. And yet these countries have not been conquered. It is not the foreigner who has despoiled them of their wealth, wasted their population, destroyed their laws, their morals and their national spirit. The poison was within them—it developed itself, and has annihilated all things."

DILEMMA.

A pupil agrees with a lawyer as follows, viz: to pay for his instruction, $100 for the first cause he wins for a client, after his time is out; that time having expired, and the pupil acting as a lawyer, has no cause offered to plead upon. The instructing lawyer being uneasy for his $100, commences an action for the recovery of his debt, upon this supposition—if I win the cause, I recover the money by judgement of court; but if I lose, he wins, and the money is mine by his contract. The young man supposes—if I lose the cause, the lawyer can not demand upon contract, as we agreed—if I win, he loses, according to judgement of court.

Quere—How must the Judge determine in this cause, without impairing the contract, or affecting the consideration of the parties' claim.—Union.

Something Curious.—The ill-starred MURAT, in his unfortunate attempt to recover his crown, landed with a few followers at Pizzo, in Calabria.—Pizzo is a small town standing on a small eminence, one mile distant from the sea shore where a few wretched houses, and fisher huts are scattered here and there—the town contains about 3000 inhabitants, mostly a poor and wretched set of people and highly despised by the Calabrians themselves; among them a tradition is held as indubitable, that the executioners of our Saviour were natives of this town; their habits and manners are in truth, little calculated to wear away the bad impression of this strange supposition.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF JERUSALEM.

The Syrian Archbishop of Jerusalem, Gregoria Pietro Giarve, lately arrived in this country and took up his residence in Frith street, Soho. He is in the dress of the Apostle St. James, with the blue turban, loose robe, etc. His long beard and venerable and apostolic appearance, attract great notice and excite much curiosity. We learn that the Archbishop's object in visiting England is to solicit assistance, and to obtain some of the machinery to establish a printing press at Mount Lebanon, for the purpose of preparing and there distributing correct editions of the Sacred Scriptures in the Syriac language. Although Mount Lebanon is under the dominion of a Christian Prince, nearly all the rest of Syria is governed by, and composed of Turks Not a few of these have lately become Christians, for the fanatic fury of their faith seems every day abating. To gain many, very many, from Mehometanism over to Christianity, little more seems wanting to distribute copies of the Bible among the Syrian Turks, in their own language; but to prepare such works has been found heretofore generally impracticable. The editions of the bible printed in this country, for most parts of the East, have, from their total inaccuracy, been utterly useless. We believe we may venture to say, without any offence to the learned, that none but a native ought to attempt to be the corrector of a Syrian Press.—A single mistake in the placing of a point, may make the same word convey a meaning the most ludicrous, for what the author intended to be of a precisely opposite character. As the Archbishop undertakes to be himself the corrector of the press about to be established, and as the learned Prelate has travelled far, relying on the liberality and Christian feeling of England, we sincerely trust that the stranger's reception here, may be such as his sacred mission and character eminently deserve.

PITTSBURGH.

Tuesday, April 20, 1819.

☞ Our city subscribers are informed that they will be waited upon this week for the amount of their dues; we hope no disappointment will take place, as we have our paper accounts to pay immediately; we trust none will object to immediate settlement, as, by recurring to the terms of our publication it will be seen, that all subscriptions were to be paid in advance. A paper can be conducted in no other way.

Our distant subscribers will immediately have their accounts sent to them for payment. Those amongst them who wish us to continue sending on the paper, are informed that their payments must be in advance; as however much we are flattered by their patronage, there is nothing in this empty name that will assist us, when the sad reality arrives, that forces us to pay the expenses of our establishment.

We are much pleased at finding our anticipations relative to Mr. Clinton entirely realized; we expressed, in an editorial article in this day's paper, our full conviction that this gentleman was entirely guiltless of the abominable and ungentlemanly conduct imputed to him by General Scott; since this article was set, we have received and now publish an unequivocal denial, signed by the Governor himself, of this base transaction. We cannot forbear expressing our decided contempt for the insidious manner in which Mr. Clinton's name has been bro't before the public in this affair; the particular period too at which this is done, gives it such an electioneering appearance, as to double our feelings of disapprobation. A man of nice sentiments of honour, such as ought at all events to be possessed by a general officer of the American army, would never make a charge impugning the character of any individual, however slightly, except under the unequivocal conviction of guilt on the part of the individual. The conclusion of General Scott's own publication convinced us that he was hacking away in the dark, and probably wreaking his vengeance on innocence, for the injury his feelings had received from the letter of General Jackson. We must repeat our regret, that any part of this affair has been made public. The conduct of our officers has been of that brilliant kind, that we had just cause to believe the memory of its splendour would long last as a guide and example for our rising military.—Jackson in particular burst upon us in all the grandeur, suddenness & eccentricity of a comet; if he has erred at all during the contest, it has been from the exuberance of real American feeling, anxious to convince Europe that neither the human mind nor human courage degenerates in the new world. We wished to refer to him as the hero of the drama, that closed in 1814. We must then deprecate any thing that operates in any way to tarnish the reputation of American chivalry. It is for this reason we expressed our sorrow and regret at the imprudent letter of General Jackson; it certainly was not such a one as the hero of Orleans would have written had he given himself time to reflect deliberately. How General Scott is to get over Governor Clinton's publication we know not; if he had not the strongest grounds for his insinuations he certainly will not be entitled to the sympathies of honourable men.

We have just received the prospectus of a new work, to be called "The Western Eclectic Repertory, and Analytical Review, Medical and Philosophical," edited by J. Lewis, M. D. and D. M. Kirkpatrick, M. D.

We feel happy that the distinguishing enterprize of the American character begins to be conspicuous in our literary pursuits, and that the chilling indifference with which indigenous periodical works are received, does not deter us from persevering in the noble attempt to establish a name for genius and science. The "Portico" at Baltimore, has fallen into ruins; every attempt to gain success in New-York and Boston has failed, yet these two cities have produced works in this line, which might occupy with perfect propriety the same shelf with the "Edinburg and Quarterly Reviews."—The "New-York Monthly Magazine,' and the "Boston Journal," are supported with great ability, but we believe the scanty patronage which they receive, is scarcely sufficient to preserve the vital warmth of existence. The "Port Folio" is highly spoken of in the London prints, and yet, notwithstanding its history and name are associated with recollections most dear to American genius, the frequent calls of its present learned editor upon delinquents prove, that the common fate is in some measure extended to it. The "Western Gleaner," published in this place, had but an ephemerial existence; and yet its matter was most interesting to science, and its editor, Doctor Aigster, without doubt one of the most learned and best informed men in the U. States. We hope that a similar fate will not attend the present work of Doctors Lewis and Kirkpatrick; indeed, from the proposed plan, by which it is to be made a repository of medical and philosophical fact, and from the great number of medical characters in the western country, we feel much more sanguine of success, than in those cases, where the object is merely literary. The scope of medical science cannot be too much extended; experience and experiment are the proper means of advancing its interests; in its sacred cause the whole globe ought to be laid under contribution, and no knowledge or information, however humble the source from which it may spring, ought to be rejected. The Western Repertory, may, we presume, be viewed as the receptacle of all that information and speculation, which is not within the vortex of the New-York and Philadelphia publications, and as offering a place of reception and investigation, for a vast mass of matter, which without the facilities thus held forth, would be lost to the world. We repose great confidence in the abilities and talents of the gentlemen who are pledged to conduct this journal—it is to be published quarterly, from the book-store of Eichbaum & Johnston, on fine paper, and will contain about 120 pages. We wish the gentlemen success, and we hope the western world will grant the prayer of their classic quotation.

"Da facilem cursum, atque audacibus annue coeptis."

LITERARY INTELLIGENCE.

Mr. J. E. Hall, the editor of the 'Law Journal' and the 'Port Folio,' has prepared for the press a Digested Index to the Term Reports, analytically arranged, containing all the points of law agreed and determined in the Court of Kings' Bench from 1785 to 1818, and in the Common Pleas from 1788 to 1818. This elaborate work comprizes the substance of nearly 50 volumes, which could not be purchased for much less than $350. The subscription price is Eight dollars, which will be raised to Ten dollars when the book is published.

TO THE PUBLIC.

General Scott, of the army of the U. States, having in a letter of the 2d Jany. 1818, to General Jackson, insinuated that I had written, dictated or instigated an anonymous letter to the latter gentleman, from unworthy motives, and for improper purposes; and having also concealed this imputation from me, until the publication of a pamphlet which reached me on the 4th inst. I have considered it proper to declare, that I have had no agency or participation in writing, dictating or instigating any anonymous letter whatever to General Jackson—that I am entirely ignorant of the author—and that the intimation of Gen. Scott is totally and unqualifiedly false, to all intents, and in all respects. This declaration is made from motives of respect for public opinion, and not from any regard for General Scott, whose conduct, on this occasion, is such a total departure from honor and propriety, as to render him unworthy of the notice of a man who has any respect for himself.

It is not probable that I can at this time have any recollection of having had the honor of seeing General Scott, on the 9th of June, 1817, at a dinner in New-York, or of the topics of conversation as he suggests; circumstances so unimportant are not apt to be impressed on the memory. But I feel a confident persuasion, that I did not make use of any expressions incompatible with the high respect which I entertain for General Jackson.

DE WITT CLINTON.

Albany, April 6, 1819.

The emperor of Austria, desirous of advancing useful knowledge, and transplanting to his dominions some of the valuable natural productions of the new world, has availed himself of the opportunity of the marriage and departure of his daughter, the archdutchess Leopoldine, to send to Brazil a number of men of science, who, with the permission of the King of Portugal, are directed to explore the most remarkable parts of that country, to examine the different productions of the three kingdoms of nature, and to enrich the European collections with specimens of them. His imperial majesty has granted the sums necessary for the expedition, and given the chief direction of it to prince Metternich. The persons appointed to proceed to Brazil for this purpose are:—Dr. Mikon, a physician and professor of botany at Prague; M. Gatterer, belonging to the cabinet of natural history; M. Enders, landscape painter; M. Schott, botanical gardener at the palace of Belvedere; professor Pohl, advantageously known by several works on mineralogy; M Buchberger, painter of plants; and M. Schick as librarian. The first four sailed from Trieste in the frigates Austria and Augusta, and the other three will embark at Leghorn with the archdutchess. M. Schreiber, director of the imperial cabinet of natural history, is appointed to write the account of the voyage. Messrs. Spix and Martens, members of the academy of sciences at Munich, have joined the expedition.

STATUE OF WASHINGTON.

Releigh, (N. C.) March 5.

We have been favoured with the perusal of a letter from Mr. Appleton, our Consul at Leghorn, to his Excellency the Governor, on the subject of the Statue of Washington which was ordered by our legislature. The following is an extract from the letter:—The inscription is placed on the architrave of the front part of the pedestal; below is represented Lord Cornwallis delivering his sword to General Washington; in both groupes appear about 12 military figures. No. 2 represents Washington resigning his commission into the hands of the President of Congress at the close of the war. No. 3 is Washington receiving the unanimous suffrage, which places him at the head of the government; and No. 4 is Washington holding a plough drawn by two oxen; behind is a humble cottage, near to which are seen Ceres and Mercury, with their suitable emblems. These appear to my mind, the four most interesting epochas of his life; and as they are sculptured by the most able hands, I hope they will meet your approbation." In another part he mentions that it will be completed during the present year.

Georgetown, (D. C.) April 5.

Amongst the vast quantity of flour which has been brought down the Potomac to Georgetown, within the last few days, was some from Ohio. This fact is of immense importance; both as it regards the future prospect of the District of Columbia, and the advantages promised to the inhabitants on both sides of the mountains from that great national work, the Cumberland Road. It is now ascertained that the rich products of the fertile counties on the Ohio and its tributary streams, may be conveyed to this District in less time and at less expense, & sold at a better profit, than to New-Orleans. And it cannot be doubted, that as soon as the road is finished, the whole of the surplus productions of those countries will find their way to the Potomac. The communication between these two great rivers once established, we shall begin to realize the benefits to which the comprehensive mind of the illustrious Washington looked forward in selecting this District for the Metropolis of the great American Republic.

It is asserted by a gentleman well acquainted with the climate and capacity of the soil in the Floridas, that that territory alone under proper cultivation, would be able to produce a sufficient quantity of coffee and sugar to supply the whole consumption of these articles in the United States. It is a fact that before the French revolution St. Domingo alone (on the authority of Mr. Edwards) exported upwards of 70,000,000 lbs. of coffee annually, though only a small part of the island was appropriated to its cultivation. Florida, then, once fixed into the hands of our enterprizing & commercial people, it may be reasonably anticipated, will soon repay the $5,000,000 which it has cost us, in the production of these articles only.

Baltimore, April 7.

Yesterday afternoon, in an affray, a Spaniard cut the throat of a colored woman, in a house in Apple alley, on the Point—he afterwards went up stairs and committed the same act on himself.—Although the wounds are represented to be deep and shocking in their appearance, it is thought they will both recover.

Advices from Gibraltar to the 12th of February, state, that the plague was increasing its ravages on the coast of Africa; and that the emperor of Morocco had disbanded his army in consequence of the prevalence of the disease among the troops.

Englishmen becoming Mahometans!—The Rev. Mr. Jowett, literary representative at Malta, of the Church Missionary Society, has just communicated some facts which are calculated to impress the mind with grief and horror; one man has turned Turk from his majesty's ship Myrmidon, captain Gambier, four from the satellite sloop of war, capt. Murray; and four from the admiral's tender, the Express. Mr. Jowett himself in company with Mr. Werry, the consul's son at Smyrna, saw the ceremony at that place of an additional apostate denying the Lord that bought him. And it seems that this dreadful practice is by no means uncommon among the sailors at Smyrna!

MAIL ROBBERS.

We learn that the three Mail Robbers tried at Trenton, have been acquitted of that part of the charge, which would condemn them to be hung, viz. perpetrating the robbery "by putting the life of the driver in jeopardy;" they have, however, been convicted of robbing the Mail, the punishment for which is imprisonment not exceeding ten years.

Franklin Gazette.

The three Mail Robbers have each been sentenced to ten years imprisonment.

From Late London Papers.

London, Feb. 20.

Leters from Spain mention, that an entire regiment, which had left Zaragossa, under orders to proceed to Valencia, where it was supposed popular commotions existed, broke out into open mutiny, at a place called Caspe, where the soldiers declared they would not take up arms to enslave their fellow-countrymen. The Colonel endeavoured to appease them, but, it is added, they rose upon & killed him, together with some of his officers, and then disbanded themselves. On the other hand, if a Ministerial Evening Paper is to be credited, letters of the 1st have been received from Madrid, which represent Spain to be in the most complete tranquility; Ferdinand VII. to be the Idol of his subjects, and a model of virtue; and the clergy to be without the least influence in the decisions of the Spanish Cabinet!

The hopes long entertained of acquiring an intimate knowledge of the interior of Africa, are likely to be soon realized. A very intelligent and enterprising gentleman, named Bodeck, unappalled by the danger & difficulties of the undertaking, and the failure of many adventurers, to penetrate into the heart of that continent, has recently returned to England, after having overcome those difficulties, and successfully explored the kingdom of the Ashantees in which he resided for six months. During the first half of this interval, he was incarcerated in a dungeon, and expected hourly to be put to death. The king of the Ashantees was, however, greatly interested by this stranger, and had him often brought from his cell to the palace, for the purpose of inquiring from whence he came and the purpose of his visit. These enterviews always took place in the dead of the night, and upon one early occasion his majesty met Mr. Bodeck half way in the dark. After repeated conversation his majesty became satisfied with respect to the intentions of the stranger, who was liberated, and for the last three months of his stay he resided at the court, and was treated with kindness. Among the curious and valuable articles brought home by Mr. Bodeck is a Geographical History of the Ashantee kingdo , in the native language, and an account of the travels and death of Mungo Park. He represents the king of the Ashantee as a most able and intelligent man. His observations and questions, which were incessant, displayed strong natural discernment and intelligence, and he was particularly anxious in his inquiries respecting the policy of the European governments.—London paper.

The London Statesman of the 27th, remarks that, "the financial as well as the political face of the country appears peculiarly grave and interesting at this moment. Accounts from foreign markets are unpromising. It appears by letters from Liverpool, that 100 packages of British goods have been returned from New-Orleans, not finding a vent in America, owing to the high price set upon them.—We have not half the American merchants in England as some time back.—They look into our manufactories, but purchase little."

The King of Wirtemburgh has abolished the punishment of the gauntlet in his army.

Advices from St. Petersburgh to the 10th of February, state, the gulph of Finland was then as open for navigation as in the middle of summer; a circumstance never before known at that period of the winter. There was no appearance of ice in the roads of Narva.

At Tornea (lat. N. 65 50) where it is not unusual to find spirits of wine frozen, the winter has been so mild, that the thermometer has been at 5 and 6 degrees above the freezing point.

A law has been introduced into the French legislative chamber, to secure the responsibility of ministers, by providing for the impeachment of any minister by the chamber of deputies. The trial to be had by the chamber of peers, and they empowered to award punishment of death, deportation, perpetual imprisonment, civil degradation, or imprisonment for a term of years.

Accounts from Sierra Leone to Dec. 21, say that the expedition to the interior cannot succeed. It had not advanced a step for the last two months, and government had declined granting any further supplies.

A vigorously contested election was going on in Westminster to supply the vacancy occasioned by the death of sir Samuel Romley. The candidates were the Hon. George Lamb and Mr. James C. Hofhouse, Lord Biron's friend and anonator. The latter gentleman was supported by the reformists and the mob orators; the former had the support of the old fashioned whigs, and many votes from the friends of the ministry. The "Sun" says he is a whig and an oppositionist, but not a Jacobin. Mr. Lamb is the son of Lord Viscount Melbourne, and a Barrister at Law.—The votes were at the close of the poll on the 8th day Feb. 22, for Lamb 2,088—Hobhouse 1702—Major Cartwright 37.

A committee of the House of Commons has reported a recommendation to reduce the appropriation for the expences of the King's household, from 100000*l* to 50000*l*. The Prince Regent in consequence of the demise of the Queen, has placed at the disposal of Parliament the sum of 58,000*l* per annum. A vote was taken in the house of Commons, Feb. 22, after debate, on an amendment offered by the opposition proposing a further reduction, and negatived 186 to 281—majority for ministers 95. Eng. pap.

Las Cases has prepared a petition to the British Parliament in favour of Buonaparte.

LOVER'S VOWS.

Thrice blest is the beam of early love,
Its rays of warmth bestowing,
Alone on hearts that in orbits move,
With hope and fervor glowing.

Then soft is the pillow by beauty prest,
For angels round it hover.
To keep alive in the maidens breast,
The image of a lover.

And sweet are the dreams that fancy then,
In gentle hearts will waken,
That ne'er have glowed with a passion vain,
Nor lov'd to be forsaken.

But dearer still such an hour as this,
When vows of love are given;
For now we taste of the cup of bliss,
That angels quaff in heaven.

O.

IMPROMPTU,

To a lady with a boquet of wild flowers.

These beauteous flowers will soon decay,
Gems of a transient hour:
All earth-born joys thus fade away,
And wither like this flower.

Ambition's blaze, and Fortune's glare,
Are meteors of a day:
And all that's lovely, bright and fair,
Ah! soonest pass away.

The buds of pious Faith and Hope,
Alone survive life's doom—
In heavens eternal spring to ope—
To blossom from the tomb.

PATENT GAS FIRE,

FOR STEAM BOAT.

A CONCENTRATED FUEL for Steam-Boats has been invented, consisting of Tar or other carbonaceous substance, commingled with Steam,

The apparatus is simple; the management easand safe. It is a great auxiliary to a wood or coal fire, which it both enlivens, encreases and saves—for it seems to combine so rapidly with the oxygen of the air, as to prevent the wood from wasting or consuming so fast as usual, the blaze, notwithstanding, being very active and intense.

The apparatus consists of a double vessel of copper or iron, cylindrical, lying on its side, upon or rather between the boilers, if there are 2.

Tar, Turpentine, Rosin, Spirits, Oil, or other combustible fluid, being put into the inner one, steam is allowed to flow from the boiler through a pipe and cock into the space between and thro' a few holes on the upper side of the inner one to press on the surfaee of the tar, which being heated by the surrounding steam, is at pleasure driven out through a small pipe (having a stop cock) meeting and uniting with another pipe leading out steam from the spaee between—the continuation of the pipe then leads to the fire or flue. The longer this pipe (if kept hot) the better. It need not be more than a quarter of an inch in diameter.

In its way the tar is extremely attenuated and mingling with the steam. Some chemists are of opinion that by the attraction of its carbon, it decomposes the steam into the constituents of water, oxygen and hydrogen, and combines with them to form the highly inflamable Gasses, carbonic-acid and carburetted hydrogen, or if not thus formed in the pipe, they are produced at or near its orifice, which need not be more than the tenth of an inch diameter for a boiler of consi lerable size.

The only art in management, is to graduate the flow of the tar and steam to such proportion as that neither shall appear to predominate, and in taking care that the fluid be previously strained so as not to obstruct the pipe by any extraneous particles. This will easily be done by placing a selve over the reservoir, from which a pipe (having a stop cock) leads into one end of the tar vessel. There is of course a safety valve and a stop cock to draw the condensed steam from between the two vessels, formed there in the beginning of the operation, while the tar was at a low temperature. Its position on the boilers will, however soon heat it. Tar boils only at a much higher temperature than water—there is therefore no danger from it.

The advantages of this kind of fuel will be very great in long passages. No steam boat or vessel can navigate the Ocean without it; and it will be found economical and convenient in every situation.

Being of recent origin, it has not been put in practice in many instances, but in several, under my own observation, and witnessed by many persons, its effects are admirable.

This advertisement is intended to offer its use gratis to a few boats, whose proprietors shall first obtain a licence. The price of this improvement afterwards will be several thousand dollars per boat, which it will be found economical in most situations to pay. The patent right for local use will be for sale after its value shall be further tested.

Licences to use this invention will be granted by

JOHN L. SULLIVAN,
Assignee of the patent of Samuel Morey.
